

Roots stem back to 1881

Citizen's American Bank opened for business in March 1933 after they received a charter from the State of Wisconsin. The institution roots its beginnings back to 1881 when the city became known as Merrill. An outgrowth of earlier banking houses, Citizens American Bank was also known as Ross, McCord & Co. from 1881-1887; George Hayward & Son from 1886-1894; First National Bank from 1887-1897; National Bank of Merrill from 1892-1912; German American Bank from 1904-1934; (name change in 1918 to American State Bank), and Citizen's National Bank from 1912-1933.

Providing every financial service to its customers, Citizen's American Bank has an experienced and qualified staff which contributes to its efficient operation; They are as follows:

L.F. Schmitt, Chairman of the Board; R.W. Savaske, Executive Vice President; William Natzke, First Vice President; R.F. Lass, Vice President; Joseph Semling, Vice President and Cashier; Beatrice E. Goetsch, Assistant Cashier; Carolyn A. Zander, Assistant Cashier; Mark Weix, Assistant Cashier; John Zulliger, Assistant Cashier and Mgr. of the Installment Credit Dept.
